Indicator Description

The Spread Scalper is, as the name already says, an indicator which was designed for scalp trading.

We consider scalp trading as intraday trading method no matter on which period or timeframe you trade. Therefore this tool is built for every intraday trader no matter if you do 1 or 100 round turns a day.

The indicator is based on Volume Spread Analyses and price action and can be used on any timeframe and on any market. Note: The underlying calculation needs to be done on a time based period (Minute or Second) but the indicator can be displayed on any Time-, Price and Volume Based chart.

The indicator will plot Up (buy) and Down (sell) signals according the VSA/Price Action calculation. This “signals” can be used as standalone as well as complementary signals with other methods. The plot of Up- or Down Box alert alone is not an entry or exit signal it just informs you about a possible upcoming entry/exit. We strongly encourage you to use a complementary and from this calculation independent method to qualify your entry spots.

The indicator offers one additional price action component which marks the High and the Low of the “Signal Candle”. When the price breaks through the one or the other side in direction of the “signal” the odds for a profitable trade are higher than with the “signal alone.

Please watch the short video to this indicator to get a brief overview and watch your inbox for invitations to several LIVE webcasts on how to use this indicator the most effective way.

NinjaScript ready: The indicator exposes the values to use in NinjaScript.

Long / Short Signal Alerts

Long / Short Price Action confirmation levels

One methode to qualify Signal Alerts is through Price Action confirmation Levels. this levels will plot a High- and a Low Line over/under each signal bar. When the price breaks the line in direction of the Signal Alert the odds increase.
